CONGRESSMAN W. L. WILSON of West Virginia, has been to New York to see Mr. Cleveland and is responsible for a good deal of the cabinet gossip now floating about Washington. According to the friends of Mr. Wilson, William C. Whitney was offered the portfolio of state, but has declined to again enter the cabinet, even as its premier.

A Washington correspondent observes: "With the congressmen here and idle, Christmas was great with joility and feasting, and the old South ern custom of celebrating it with firecrackers still prevailed. It was after seeing a Christmas in Washington that an Indian chief, guest of President Jackson, ventured the remark that the person in whose honor the day was celebrated must have been "a great warrior and a great drunkard."

TALK about Kentucky suffering because of the so-called corner on socalled whisky! There are 2,000,000 Kentuckians and 30,000,000 gallons of real whiskey in Kentucky. We may be a little short on eggs, but we are out of sight on the other ingredient.—Louisville Times. SOME CHILLING OBSERVATIONS.

Since the ... 'enap all the weather prophets are predicting a cold winter. Up in Chicago and out on the western prairies they have been having far below zero weather for the past five days. This has been wire edged by a breeze that has the tinge and tingle of Alaska on its frosty front. The muskrat, after all, knows more about, coming events by instinct than our weather prophets with all their keenly whetted ken. It was the muskrat that predicted this weather, when he built his house doubly clap-boarded in the fall, and proceeded to crawl in deep and early. We also remember another sign. The sweet birds left us for the South, earlier than usual, and the hoar frost popped open the chestnut burrs, even before the chest, nuts were ripe for roasting. The Chicago Herald young man, who does the weather business for that breezy city, observes:

"It is positively cold in ais city. The ake is frozen from the shore to the breakwater, and piled deep as far out as the crib. But twice last winter did this phenomenon happen, and that was along in January, when the mercury goes down into its bulb and lingers until early spring and ground-hog day. This weather makes a fellow wish he had lived in the carboniferous age, or been a silurian in the good old days about 700,000 B, C., when this part of why not a painter? For what is a poet | the earth was baked, and tropical monkeys sat idly on the logs in the agoons and chatted neighborly with the dodoes; when palms and figs and banyan trees flourished by the river bank, and the snake was contented to occupy the sphere for which he was created; when it was summer the year around, and the grasping plumber was yet unmade; when nine-tenths of the land was water, and there was no tax on it."

JUST now many thousands of Democratic American citizens are turning preparing papers, securing letters and having petitions signed, so that they can secure appointments of various kinds. While they are happy in antic JOHN SHERMAN says that his party | ipation of securing places, those Republicans who are walking in the dark ness of political vicissitude are full of gloom and stunned by disappointment. To many of them removal means penury and deprivation. There is many an unhappy household now in Washington, where heavy hearts and sighling breasts can be observed. The "ins" realize that they will have to go, and their future being uncertain, they are full of fretfulness and worriment. There are shadows that cross the life of every politician who is in the vortex of public life in Washington. The capitol is the sphere of glorious hope, yet its atmosphere is loaded with neglected possibilities and wrecked ambitions. It is only the comparatively few in public position that make a permanent and lasting mark or , the pages of this country's history .- W. W. A. in Plain > for this decision, as given in the World: "Cleveland carried Ohio on the popular vote. This question of how a divided State should be counted came un in 1890, and after careful consideration the World laid down the rule that the popular vote of a State was represented by the total number of persons voting The Democratic elector in Ohio stands at the head of the poll, not because his name appears on any Republican ballot, but because there were more persons voting the Democratic than voting the Republican ticket. That the remainder of the Democratic ticket is not elected is an accident. You must decide all bets on Cleveland carrying Ohio in favor of the Democratic better."

WE are in receipt of Vol. 1, No. 1 of the Minerva Kodac, by our brilliant and versatile friend, W. S. Knox. It is a five column quarto and full of local news of Minerva and vicinity. In announcing his principles and policy, brother Knox says:

"The Kodak will be independently Democratic in politics when it has any politics to offer, but we see no more cause for a continual parade of party politics than we do for a constant display of sectarian religion. We be-lieve men can differ in politics and religion and yet fulfill all requirements of good neighbors and patriotic civizens."

We wish brother Knox abundant success in his great missionary work of converting the numerous heathers, io and about Minerva.

REMEMBERED THE POOR.

The inmates of the County Infirmary were truly well remembered yeaterday by the W. C. T. U. During the afternoon a large number of ladies loaded themselves down with baskets and packages of Xmas sifts and took the cars for the infirmary. The inmates were collected in the seats in the library and a short divine service was held. The distributions of gifts was then made. Not a single individual was missed. held. The distributions of gifts was then made. Not a single individual was missed. Even the insane were remembered by the kindly visitors and everybody made happy. The work was certainly an appreciative one on the part of the recipients, and a noble act on the part of this growing association of Christian workers.

AT THE PAIRMOUNT HOME. Christmas was duly observed at the Fairmount Home on Saturday, and a sumptuous feast was given the little ones who marched into the spacious dining room about 11:30 a.m., dressed in their best attire. It was an interesting aight and enjoyed by visiting guests and all others present. All the children that were able to come, were scated at the tables to the number of 116. As soon as they are able to feed themselves they are brought to the regular meals in the dining room. After being properly placed, the bell taps, and in concert they repeat grace, on this occasion singing it nicely in concert. After the plates of all were amply filled the bell again was tapped and all went to work with vigor.
